PAY YOUR FEDERATION DUES

The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies in Toronto is in financial straits. Over eighty dependent families did not receive their allowances last week from the Family Welfare Board. This means that about 400 souls are literally without bread, being totally dependent on the Federation for their weekly support. The first of the month has come and gone and the constituent organizations of the Federation, the Orphans' Home, the Maternity Aid Society and the other nine organizations have not received their monthly grants. The salaries of the workers have not been paid. The Federation has a bank overdraft of $4,000.

The Federation has collected and spent more money in the last eleven months than it has in any past year since its foundation. The reason it is in such a bad way is that times are hard, more people are unemployed, sick, etc., than in previous winters, and some $14,000 of outstanding dues is not yet paid.

If the subscribers to the Federation who are in arrears would pay up, all would be well. The Federation is relying on the payment of these arrears to keep its doors open, otherwise they must shut. When times are "hard" the business of the Federation is good in the sense that there are more applicants for help than when times are good and subscribers can contribute with no discomfiture. But what is the Federation to do? It must keep body and soul together for the poor. It cannot say no to an outstretched hand whose plea is worthy.

If you are in arrears, pay up now, and save the Federation. If you are not in arrears, pay your next quarterly subscription in advance. Committees will call on you next week. Receive them kindly. Remember they are giving their time in addition to their money. Don't send them away empty-handed.

UNDESIRABLES IN PALESTINE

"Not Wanted" is how Dr. Weizmann, the leader of the World Zionist Organization, who has just arrived in America, characterized the land speculators, or as he called them, "the Luftmenschen, or the Jews with the canes" in Palestine. The country requires builders not speculators, colonizers not city-dwellers. The Jews with the little canes come to Palestine, and instead of [illegible] settling down to cultivate it, settle in the cities and towns such as Tel-Aviv, Jerusalem and Haifa, and speculate in real estate. Real estate speculation, "may be good business in other countries, but in Palestine we don't want real estate speculators," said Dr. Weizmann.

All must agree that Dr. Weizman has hit the nail on the head. It does not and cannot help the upbuilding of Palestine to have these "Jews with little canes" come to Palestine, buy up land and speculate with it. This merely increases the price of land, retards building operations and is responsible in many senses for the present housing shortage in Palestine.

But what can be done about it is the real question. I see no way of preventing speculation in real estate, and even if there were a way, "the Jews with the little canes" would find a way of defeating its purposes. It is impossible to pass laws to prohibit land speculation excepting by the Single Tax method, and I do not believe Palestine is ready for this radical reform. Another way would be for all the land to be bought and owned collectively by the Jewish National Fund and be leased out under strict regulations. But where in the wide world is this Fund to secure the millions and millions of dollars which would be required for this Socialistic plan? Judging by the niggardly way in which the Jewish people are now contributing to the Keren Hayesod, it is the height of folly to imagine the possibility of the land in Palestine being owned and controlled exclusively by the National Fund. Under the circumstance Palestine will have to be built up principally by private enterprize and initiative. The fact is that the greater the influx to Palestine, the greater will be the speculation in land. It is the old economic story of supply and demand all over again.

Speaking further about recent developments in Palestine, Dr. Weizman declared that things were moving with an accelerated tempo. He did not fail, however, to point out, too, that the country was faced with the dangerous tendency of the Jews concentrating in cities and towns and neglecting the work of agricultural colonization. "Though the rapid growth of cities like Tel-Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias are without a doubt important for the development of the country, we dare not forget that colonization is the more important work, especially if we are to develop in Palestine our own Jewish civilization."

Dr. Weizmann does not live in a world of illusions. He is a practical dreamer, with the emphasis on the practical. He is a builder, not a visionary. This he is, not by reason of temperament, but by scientific training. I admire in him two traits, those of practicability and a capacity for honest criticism of the movement of which he is the leader. What I have quoted from his interview is sufficient to show that Dr. Weizmann has again touched on a root evil in the development of Palestine which must be somehow corrected. It is, of course, natural for Jews who have been city-dwellers for generations to prefer the towns and cities in Palestine. What is amazing in the Palestinian situation is the large number of Chaluzim who in spite of being the products of city life are deliberately settling down as agriculturalists in Palestine. This power of transforming city dwellers into farmers only Palestine Zionism could accomplish for the Jew.

Though Dr. Weizmann did not speak of any other undesirables in Palestine, there are others that I wish to mention. They consist of those ardent, romantic and prosperous well-to-do Zionists principally from America, whose zeal and ardor for Palestine leads them to sell out a well established business and home in America, take their families and leave to make their homes in Palestine. This sort of family, used to the American standard of living, its elegant house, with all its fine sanitary and electrical equipment, fine schools and tutors, and all that goes with living in a big city, generally returns home after living in Palestine for three, six or eight months or sometimes even a year. It returns disillusioned, disappointed, discouraged and discouraging, its romance shattered according to the story it tells, by the severity of the conditions that it finds there.

Facts are facts, and no amount of romanticizing can eliminate a single fact. Reliable Zionists who have lived in the country for years tell me that Palestine is still undeveloped in our American sense of the term. To live there one must be prepared to give up much that one is accustomed to in the large cities of America. There is still some malaria in the country, and those who go to Palestine to live, I understand, must be prepared to get it even as in America everyone is prepared for the 'flu'. The medical, sanitary and housekeeping facilities are not what they are in America. The climate is different, the educational facilities are still, comparatively speaking, undeveloped, the theatres and opera, etc., etc.—in a word, everything is still primitive, compared to the opportunities and facilities of city life in America. I need hardly mention the tremendous difference in business and labour conditions in Palestine compared to America.

BUSINESS MEN'S COUNCIL FIRST ANNUAL DINNER

The Business Men's Council met at a dinner on Tuesday, February 10, at the Montefiore Club, 399 Guy Street, to celebrate the first anniversary of the founding of the Council. The body was organized to further the Federation ideal in philanthropy of supporting social agencies through the medium of annual subscriptions, instead of haphazard appeals, tag days, ticket-selling and other means of raising money before Federation was adopted.

Harry Rother, chairman of the Council during its first year, delivered his report for the period of his stewardship, and touched on the many difficulties that had to be overcome before the Council became a functioning body.

The drive during Passover netted the Federation $6,400. A round up brought in an additional $2,700. In October after three days of concerted action, $17,500 was reported as having been added to the treasury of Federation, at a cost of only about 5 per cent. of the money received.

Rabbi Merritt talked on "The True Spirit of Jewish Philanthropy." David Kirsch, chairman of the executive committee of the Federation, in discussing its financial position, said that the budgets of the constituent societies were balanced during 1924 through economizing and through better administrative methods.

The election of a new executive for the council for 1925 followed. Mr. Leon Fischel was elected chairman. Committee: A. A. Bronfman, Martin Simon,

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

A new book, full of drama and satisfying, entertaining reading is "The Matriarch" by G. B. Stern, the English writer. This is a rare book, too, because it is a chronicle about Jews written without either patronage, tears or sentimental nonsense. It is the story of the Rakonitz family which has blue eyes, delicately straight noses, waltz tunes in their blood, instead of inherited melancholy, graceful, ineffectual men, fools at business, and witty, domineering women—an extravagant, pleasure-loving clan.

The jacket of "The Matriarch" shows a group of puppets controlled by strings from a woman's jewelled hands. They are the hands of Anastasia Rakonitz, the matriarch, the tyrannical head of a tribe living in all the capitals of Europe. Settled in England, she is the centre of a family of Viennese Jews whose rise and migrations are told with dash, effervescence, kindly humor and brilliance in one of the year's best books.

"The Matriarch" is a rest from the modern novel, surcharged with sex and fevers. In a day of introspective writing it is like another Victorian novel. Its pages are crowded with people who make the plot, while the author looks on. What she sees is the procession of the Rakonitz family from 1805 until the present day, moving about against a tapestry of legend, family tradition and fascinating tales strung together. Most of the time its rise to wealth, its marriages and intermarriages, its anniversaries and great goings on in the kitchen, are all arranged or superintended by Anastasia, the matriarch.

The book must be surprising to Gentiles and to many Jews as well. Except for two hook noses, one born into the family and the other acquired by marriage, "The Matriarch" might have been the history of Gentiles of some temperamental race. Ghettoes and squalor and the Rakonitz family don't go together. There is no suggestion of exceptional Jewish purity, not a word about the religious side, not a single pair of candles on a single spotless cloth, no synagogue affiliations, no emotion about the perpetuation of Judaism, no heritage specifically Jewish, no bitter objections to intermarriage. Why, in 1868 in Paris, Babette, the great-great-great-grandmother of the youngest, was sitting down to her first meal of ham. This will be hard for many a Gentile to grasp, for as one of the characters says, "the only type of Jew a Gentile can understand is the pictorially comic one, plump, greasy, bediamonded, with beady eyes, curly black hair and overworked gesticulation."

Some have seen in "The Matriarch" the problem of Anglo-Jewish marriage, but this is most certainly not the thesis of the book. Others may exclaim, and with some support from the author, that first cousins have no right to marry and thus at length produce a Toni so much like Anastasia, her despotic grandmother. It seems quite apparant that Miss Stern really meant this shrewd, dazzling piece to show the fight for freedom of the individual against the chains of love, pride, reputation and domination, that compose the family. You find it in the speeches of the younger generation chafing against the officiousness, arrogance and meddlesomeness of family in council: "human sacrifice at the altar, blood all down the steps, sacrifice to the insatiable family."

If "The Matriarch" does not achieve the stilleto touch of greatness, it is because you see the Rakonitz family only as any colourful, attractive people that you meet in a drawing room. You are never entirely alone with any one. You never see the naked soul for Miss Stern takes no probe to her characters. They are painted for you, not dissected. Nevertheless, "The Matriarch" can be called a good book, and it will not die within the year, because some one will always be telling someone else how vivid it is and how it makes a patch of Jewish history live.

"LILIOM" TO BE GIVEN BY Y.M.H.A. AMATEURS AT HIS MAJESTY'S SOON

In keeping with their policy of producing outstanding plays of a serious nature, the Drama League of the Young Men's Hebrew Association have in preparation, and will produce about the middle of March, "Liliom," the much discussed play of Franz Molnar, which enjoyed long and successful runs in New York, London and the capitals of Continental Europe. Rupert Kaplan will have the title-role, while Ruth Symonds will play Julie. It will be recalled that these parts were created for the English-speaking stage by Joseph Schildkraut and Eva Le Gallienne, respectively.

The story of "Liliom" literally, "The Lily," used in a sarcastic sense, a story that begins on earth and ends with a scene in heaven has delighted, baffled and surprised audiences everywhere. Molnar is a brilliant example of dramatic realism, but in this play there are spiritual values about all the characters and the playwright is himself impelled to carry his hero to heaven through the very force of the character he himself has created.

To the Editor:
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

I do not know whether I am in duty bound to avail myself of your invaluable correspondence column, but the editorial in the issue of February 13, extending "heartfelt congratulations" to the directorate and shareholders of the Liberal Synagogue of London demands a little more profundity in the realm of thought than its two columns so casually invites. If you will stop to peruse again the last two paragraphs you will read, "I nevertheless welcome, as do all Reform Jews of America, the deserved progress which they have made in behalf of a cause which we hold so dear . . . . may . . . they live long enough to preach and teach Judaism as they understand it. I am certain that it will prove a citadel of strength to Judaism." Now I consider myself one of "all the Reform Jews of America." I therefore assent in congratulating the Liberal Synagogue and its leaders for their "deserved progress." But let us be clear as to our interpretation of "deserved progress." They deserve a reward for merit—not for a distinguished contribution to Jewish philosophy, but rather for their endurance struggle of twenty years in weathering the "vigorous opposition of Orthodox Judaism." To me, their "progress" is not the evolution and growth of ideas, for a mere change in religion is nothing drastic; nothing that all Jewry, not alone stagnant Orthodoxy but even Reform Jewry, could honestly acclaim as inestimably valuable. Their progress in the matter of beliefs and principles, viewed from our standpoint of possible supplementals to Judaism, is far from splendid, far from glorious. Yet viewed in the light of mere existence its capacity to live year in and year out—it is truly glorious. It is in fact heroic. I have the highest respect and admiration for men of sincerity, for men who have the courage to seek the betterment of life in higher truths, especially when they live and practice such truths. Yet how many who are to-day in the folds of Jewry embrace with "enthusiastic fervour" the New Testament and Jesus Christ? I say, then, let us give due credit to the leaders of this synagogue for the courage of their convictions, but let us not in our misguided good nature "hail the news with much satisfaction," nor fervently pray that they may propagate Judaism as they understand it. Let us heed what our own Rabbi Brickner succintly cautions is when he writes, "Liberalism and Reform have been stressed far too much, ofttimes to the hurt and neglect of Judaism and Jewishness." Rabbi Brickner says he finds the Monthly Bulletin of the Liberal Synagogue extremely thought-provoking and religiously stimulating. What with their ecclesiastical propagations and principles of nationalistic retrogressions, who would not find it thought-provoking and religiously stimulating? Their anti-nationalistic attitude, their condemnation of the economic upbuilding of Palestine, lacks even the elements of the most meagre justification, yet their defence might be that "some there are who pride themselves on being different." And to these I extend my heartfelt sympathies. The London Liberal Synagogue seems, in the cold light of its importance and material worth to Judaism as proclaimed by the reformed masses, has received a truly brilliant eulogy in comparison to what it really deserves. This is due to the sufficient courtesy and good nature of our Rabbi Brickner. With all respect and humility to the scholarly and indefatigable workers of the London Liberal Synagogue, I for one am not so certain that it is a citadel of strength to Judaism—if it is to remain our Judaism. I certainly would not vote for the adoption of their ideals as the national programme for Judaism.

Thank you,

DAVID SHER.

299 Crawford Street.

Dr. Weizman's Appeal Brings Greatest Response in History of Keren Hayesod

New York.—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, opening the New York Keren Hayesod cash campaign for a million dollars in Carnegie Hall last Monday night, struck a note of intense seriousness in a vivid portrayal of the life of European Jewry which evoked a greater response than any of the impassioned appeals which characterized the opening of previous campaigns. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars in advance contributions was announced by the chairman of the meeting, Morris Rothenberg. Of this sum $99,000 had been raised at a special meeting of the board of directors on Thursday, February 12, which was addressed by Dr. Weizmann and Colonel Kisch, and was attended by many out-of-town members.

One of the features of the response was a general and remarkable raising of the level of subscriptions, so that, for the first time in the history of the Fund, three $10,000 contributions were recorded, one by Samuel Untermyer, the president, the second by Benjamin Winter and the third by Max Blumberg. The latter two were chosen associate treasurers of the campaign.

The audience which packed Carnegie Hall to the doors listened with tense interest to the address of Dr. Weizmann and the campaign leaders. Old campaigners declared that a new spirit has arisen in the attitude towards giving for Palestine, a spirit of conscious responsibility which would reflect itself in a bigger cash total than at any time in the history of the Fund. The keynote of Dr. Weizmann's address was the pressure on the gates of Palestine and the great responsibility and opportunity which faced the Jews of the world, in which American Jewry must take the lead.

The meeting was addressed by the chairman, Morris Rothenberg, who is at the head of the National Board of Directors, as well as by Carl Sherman, ex-Attorney-General of New York State, and Judge Albert Cohen, two of the three associate chairmen. Judge Alexander Geismar, the third associate chairman, was prevented from attending, but sent a message. A message was also received from Samuel Untermyer, now in Florida.

Another speaker was Julius Miller, president of the Borough of Manhattan, who appeared at a Zionist gathering for the first time. Louis Lipsky, Dr. Schmarya Levin and Colonel Kisch brought the new Palestine vividly before the audience. The meeting heard also reports on the campaign from Morris A. Zeldin, the campaign director, as well as from the leaders of the various sections. Some of the larger contributions which were announced were the following: Samuel Untermyer, $10,000; Benjamin Winter, $10,000; Max Blumberg, $10,000; Nathan Straus; $7,500; Keren Hayesod Women's League, $15,000; A. Liebovitz and family, $5,500; Hermann Conheim, $5,000; Jacob Goell, $5,000; Jacob Siegel, $5,000; annonymous, $5,000; Israel Matz, $3,000; Pincus Glickman, $2,500; Morris Polsky, $1,500; A. Rosenberg, $1,500; Louis Germain, $750; David Epstein, $1,000; Estate of George Epstein, $1,000; Barnard Crausman, $1,000; Philip Luria, $1,000; Morris Sendar, $1,500; Isaac Ipp, $1,000; Isaac Meister, $1,000; Mrs. Jacob Siegel, $1,000; Michael Salit, $1,000; Samuel Barnett, $1,000; M. Kiss, $500; and S. J. Weinstein, $500.

Dr. Weizmann was given a arousing ovation when he rose to speak, but he himself cut short the demonstration and spoke as follows:

"Since my last visit to this country, I have been in Palestine, the land which [illegible] the main hope of the Jewish wanderer, and on my way to and from Palestine I stopped in various European countries and observed closely the life of the Jewish people living in them. I desire to report to you some of my impressions of Jewish life, more particularly in its economic aspect, first in Europe, second in Palestine.

"I shall not dwell on those Jewish communities which are numerically small and for that reason do not present as serious a problem as do the others, although even such communities like the one in Italy are now faced with problems, as Jews, which they have not known for centuries, for, owing to the Fascist policy of religious instruction in the public schools, Jewish parents are faced by the alternative either of establishing their own schools or losing their children, in the moral sense of the term.

"In all the countries of Europe the process of post-war economic readjustment which is now in progress has found the Jews as its principal victims. Quite apart from any anti-Semitic spirit or policy, the hard facts of economic changes are depriving millions of Jews of their former means of subsistence. This is true even in a country like Czecho-Slovakia, whose leaders and statesmen are men of the most liberal type. The self-assertion of the Czechs is forcing the national minorities of the country into a position of economic instability resulting in the movement of the Jews from the small population centers into the larger centers, the formation of large ghettos and all the attendant phenomena.

"Although I did not visit Poland on my last tour through Europe, I conferred with men whose knowledge of the country and position in the affairs of the Jewish community make them authoritative witnesses. Poland, owing to her inability to compete industrially in the west with Germany, owing further to her loss of the eastern market in Russia and beyond, is compelled to lay first emphasis on agriculture. The Jews who have been the traders and industrialists of Poland, are naturally the first to suffer. In addition, since it is impossible to impose heavy taxes on the peasant, the heaviest brunt of the taxation policy falls on the cities, which means on the Jews. The result is that while the Jews are prevented, by the fact that the land is in the possession of the Poles, from establishing themselves on the soil, whatever sources of livelihood are open to them in the city are practically being taxed away by the government. I am confining myself to the economic aspects of the situation, but one must bear in mind that it reflects itself also on every other aspect of the life of the 3,000,000 Jews of Poland.

"A similar process of economic uprooting is visibly in progress in other lands, Roumania, Hungary and Russia. In the latter country it is not so visible. We are not permitted to see it in operation but we know from the numerous reports which reach us that the millions of Jews in Russia find the economic ground literally slipping from under their feet. Having been the merchants and small artisans under the previous regime, there is literally no room for them, economically, under the present regime. It is not an exaggeration to say that from the Vistula to the Urals, 9,000,000 of our people find themselves economically uprooted and dislocated and facing a blind alley. Never before in the checkered history of our people have we been faced with a problem of such magnitude and seriousness.

"I come now to Palestine and from what I have said, it becomes clear why the pressure upon the gates of Palestine is so tremendous. It is true, of course, that thousands are coming into the new Land of Promise for Zionist or idealistic reasons, but economic pressure is driving many thousands into the country and many more thousands whom Palestine cannot now absorb are being compelled to turn their faces toward the Land of Israel. It is undoubtedly true that even were the gates of Palestine thrown open as wide as they possibly could be, the jam would be still greater than these gates could admit.

"In the past eight or ten months they have been coming in at the rate of about 2,000 per month. That number is greater than we were prepared for. Nevertheless, it has been absorbed into the life of the country with surprising completeness. The test of such absorption is, of course, the employment situation and the fact is that in Palestine to-day there is no unemployment. Nevertheless, this pressure which it is impossible altogether to control, creates numerous problems. It creates among others, the problem of bringing about a balance between the urban and rural settlements. At present the city of Tel-Aviv is absorbing too large a number of the newcomers. What we need is to create a rural community as the foundation of this urban growth, otherwise the same unhealthy preponderance of city settlement as exists in eastern Europe will repeat itself in Palestine. Nor can we expect that the facility with which the large number of arrivals have hitherto adapted themselves will continue with an increase in their number. There must be a widening and a deepening of the economic foundations of Jewish life in Palestine all along the line. More land must be bought, more agricultural settlements planted. As for industries, there must be more opportunities opened for private initiative and then the latter will be able to take care of their growth.

"Nor can we neglect the cultural phase of our programme. We must provide more schools for the children of the newcomers. We must develop the Hebrew university whose dedication on April 1 the non-Jewish world as well as the Jewish awaits with such profound interest.

"With the foundations of Jewish life in many lands undermined, we are faced with the greatest opportunity and the gravest responsibility in Palestine. It is our opportunity to establish Jewish life in Palestine within the next five years on unshakable foundations. The union of all Jewish forces for the purpose is essential and I hope that such a union will come about under the leadership of American Jewry. I can report to you that in all lands, Jewish communities are awaiting your lead in the matter of the Keren Hayesod as well as in the formation of the Jewish agency. The situation is not unlike that which exists as between Europe generally and your great country, whose leadership and co-operation is essential to the world's progress. I am confident that American Jewry will accept this leadership and that our opportunity and responsibility in Palestine will be met in that spirit of great enterprise and generosity which is characteristic of American life."

OBITUARY

The death occurred last Thursday evening at a local hospital of Mrs. A. L. Florence. For many years Mrs. Florence had been a resident of Ottawa. She came to Canada as a girl from Kovno, Russia, where she was born forty-five years ago, and with her parents went to Hamilton, later coming to Ottawa. Mrs. Florence was vice-president of the local Hadassah, a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Rideau Street Synagogue, and of the Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society. When the Y.M.H.A. and Y.W.H.A. were in existence she took an interest in their welfare. In non-Jewish circles Mrs. Florence was a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ottawa General Hospital, Water Street, and of the Local Council of Women, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Perley Home. She attended the Rideau Street Synagogue. Besides her husband, Mrs. Florence leaves three sons, John, Harold and Frank, and four daughters, Mrs. A. This glance backward is of his own professional life; 1872 to 1875 it was Dan Diamond and Thomas J. Ryan; 1876 to 1886 it was John T. Kelly and Thomas J. Ryan, and 1886 to 1921 it was Thomas J. Ryan and Mary Richfield. "A Slight Interruption" is the billing of Ralph C. Bevan and Beatrice Flint, giving their own private blend of comedy talk and song. "Montana" is a cowboy banjoist. Elly, the little marvel and America's greatest feminine juggler, and other features complete the bill.

STANDARD

At the Standard the Russian artist, Leonid Sniegor, will appear for three performances only. This Friday evening February 20, Saturday matinee, February 21, Arzibasheff's "Jealousy," and Saturday evening, Andreyev's "Seven That Were Hanged." These plays are classics and the artist will be supported by Standard Theatre players.

EMPIRE

For the first time in twenty-five years of Columbia Burlesque, a company of entertainers, exclusively coloured folk, is touring the "Wheel" and comes next week to the Empire theatre with a melange of jazz, melody, dance and sprightly stepping that makes coloured shows so universally entertaining. "Seven-Eleven" is the title of the show and Hurtig and Seamon sponsor the attraction on the Columbia circuit. It was this firm that originally starred Williams and Walker and Ernest Hogan in theatres that had never before presented coloured entertainers. Jules Hurtig avers that this is the first show he has seen since those early days of advancement for coloured players that he has considered worthy of his backing. "Seven-Eleven" is a two-act hodge-podge of comedy bits, songs, dances and general excitements. It is declared that in the chorus of this aggregation is the liveliest ensemble of dancers and high steppers that has ever been congregated in the interest of driving away the blues. Featured principals in the new show are Garland Howard, successor to George Walker, as the dandy; Mary Brown, who dances with the agility and grace of Ann Pennington; Sam Cook, who plays a variety of comedy characters, and Speedy Smith who is a lot of coloured comics all rolled into one. Thursday night, Chorus Girls' Revue.

"A total eclipse of the public" and "a lunatic shade spread across the solar disc of reason" were the causes of "the overwhelming defeat of the child labour amendment in the Massachusetts referendum," said Dr. Felix Adler, New York, at the Society for Ethical Culture. Since then enough states (13 out of 15), have voted against the amendment to defeat it and the probability is that the same ratio will be maintained with the rest of the states. EDITORIAL

And thank God that it is so—grant God that the standard of the American city cave-dwellers may never be transplanted to Palestine. What people forget under the spell of love and romanticism, is that habits of life are not easily changed except under the influence of an iron will and a steeled determination to "stick it out," come what may. I can, at this moment, recall the names of many of my own Zionist friends, who left America, their professions, business, homes and friends behind them and betook themselves to Palestine, only to return in from three months to a year. None of these people came back knockers. They are all boosters of the wonderful things that have been accomplished in Palestine. But they are all unanimous in this, "that ambition should be made of sterner stuff," that Palestine is still a pioneering country, that the conditions of life are those fitted for the pioneer, and that it may be a long while before the prosperous spoiled Jew of Amercia will find conditions in Palestine livable for him.

My reaction to these "tenderfoots" is that it would have been far better for them, Palestine and Zionism, if they had not gone at all, only to return with the roseate pictures of their imaginations shattered like so many bubbles. These people do the cause and the land infinitely more harm than good. Their effect on the masses is like that of the ten meraglim who visited Canaan. Palestine has been thirty-five years building, during which time the war gave it a terrific set-back. It is marvellous, when one considers what has been done in so short a period. What are thirty-five years in the building of a country, especially when this building had to be done, for the most part, with limited means and under the handicaps of rotten Turkish politics? That the country is still in a pioneer condition is natural and to be expected. What is unnatural and naive is for these romanticists to expect to go to Palestine from New York or Chicago, and find conditions duplicated on a small scale there. Dr. Weizmann would do well to advise these "tenderfoots" to stay at home. Here they can work for Palestine with the glow of imagination in their hearts. If they go to Palestine, they should go as tourists to spend Pesach, and come back with their romanticism enhanced. Then they can tell their friends of the glories of transforming a land of rocks, sand and swamps into an Eden, and of the wonders of the Chaluzim, the revival of Hebrew as a spoken language, the wailing wall, the Bezulel Art School, the splendour of mountain sunsets, and the lovely moonlight nights, the many-hued flora and fauna, the new Hebrew University, of having taken afternoon tea with the High Commissioner, some gossip about this or that Zionist official, etc., etc. I need not here repeat the regular line of enthusiastic talk we hear from visitors to the Holy Land.

There is a third class of Jewish undesirables in Palestine. They are the fanatical left wing Communists, some of whom it is said, are subsidized by Moscow. Some of these people have stirred up considerable trouble among the Arabs and the unemployed Chaluzim. Fortunately, their numbers are few. Whether Palestine shall be built along Communistic lines or not does not depend on the Jews, but on the British Government and other elements in the land. The Communistic Jews in Palestine make themselves and the Jews ridiculous. Some of them have been deported for their mischief. They are merely throwing monkey wrenches into delicate machinery and their presence in Palestine is a disturbing factor.

I have mentioned these three classes of undesirables in Palestine, and perhaps there are others. But these three are enough. What I regret as I think of Palestine at this critical juncture in Jewish life, is that it cannot unfortunately be that haven of refuge for the thousands of stranded Jews at ports, unable to go back or go forward, that the doors of England, United States and Canada are shut to them. Palestine is the only country to which they could go, and yet, to inundate Palestine with people for whom there is no work and no maintenance funds, would be suicidal to those who were admitted and to this delicate experiment. It is not a matter of sentiment, but of money.

Dr. Weizmann has never said anything truer than he said in his first address, on his first visit to America. The golden key that unlocks the gate of Palestine to our people lies in the pockets of the Jews of America. As many Jews can come into Palestine as the contributions to the Keren Hayesod funds will permit. Not the British Government, but the Jews of America, control the Palestinian quota for Jewish immigrants. Our immigration policy in Palestine should not be selective, excepting on the basis that it will let in only those who can and will be BUILDERS—PIONEERS—and keep out those who are speculators—luftmenschen, "the Jews with the little canes"—disturbers and destroyers and those who come to try out and spy out the land.

National Fund Director Here

Rabbi J. L. Zlotnick, director of the National Fund in Canada, and the guest of the Zionist Organization this week, spoke on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. to a mass meeting at the Standard Theatre.

Sunday evening a conference of all executives of the various Zionist societies took place at the Zionist building, where Rabbi Zlotnick explained the present position of the Zionist movment. Plans for further work in the province were discussed. Dr. J. Shayne was appointed provincial director of the National Fund.

Monday evening a reception was held in honour of Rabbi Zlotnick by the National Fund Committee, S. Rogul chairman, at the Zionist Institute, to bid farewell to the Rabbi on his departure for Palestine. He is called from the head office of the National Fund at Jerusalem to a conference, and from there will tour South Africa to organize a National Fund campaign.

Rabbi Zlotnick will also be official representative of Canadian Jewry at the opening of the university in Jerusalem. He was presented with a Golden Book certificate by the Hadassah of Toronto.

Rabbi Zlotnick left here late Tuesday evening for Ottawa and then for Montreal, from where he will leave for Palestine, March 4, to be gone seven or eight months.

Rabbi Zlotnick was born in Plock, Poland, April 15, 1888. Since the age of ten was brought up in the home of his eldest brother, Rabbi Jonah Mordecai Zlotnick, in Zakroczim and later of Plock, and his brother, Rabbi Mayer Zlotnick, Glowaczew, Poland; 1910 he spent in the famous Yeshiva Volozyn, where the Smichah has been conferred upon him by the great Roch Yeshiva, the famous gaon, Rabbi Raphael Shapiro, father-in-law of the famous rabbi of Brisk, Rabbi Chaim.

In 1911 he was elected rabbi in the city of Gombin, the seat of famous rabbis since the days of "Mogen Abraham." Published articles and essays in the "Hacfirah" and other Hebrew publications and also in numerous Yiddish newspapers and magazines; was also a member of the executive of the Central Committee of the Zionist Organization of Poland. In 1917 when the Agudath Israel started the aggressive policy against the Zionist Organization in Poland, convinced that the Polish orthodoxy might become a factor in Zionism by proper organization, he called the first conference for building up a Mizrachi organization in Poland. President of this conference, he started an arduous campaign for Mizrachi ideals among Polish Jewry, publishing numerous pamphlets both in Hebrew and Yiddish on timely topics and Jewish education. These pamphlets were distributed in tens of thousands.

In 1918 Rabbi Zlotnick represented the Polish Mirachi at the first World Mizrachi Conference in Amsterdam, Holland. In the meantime the Mizrachi in Poland had grown up to an organization boasting of a membership of 100,000. Then he resigned from his position as rabbi and went to Warsaw as general secretary of the organization. He also organized special Mizrachi schools throughout Poland and a Yeshiva Tachkimoni in Warsaw. In 1920 he was invited by Rabbi Berlin to come to America. He accepted this invitation, participating on his way to America in the first Zionist World Conference after the war, which took place in London in July, 1920. While visiting America he was invited by the Canadian Mizrachi to be president of this organization. While at the 12th Zionist Congress at Carlsbad (where he was elected to the Great Actions Committee), he was responsible for the settlement made between the Keren Hayesod and the Mizrachi organization in regard to budgeting the educational and colonization schemes of the latter. Then he came back to Canada in the capacity of director of the Jewish National Fund.

Rabbi Zlotnick is the author of a series of books under the name "Der Vunder Ozar von der Yiddisher Sprach," a thorough study of the idioms and special characteristics of the Jewish langauge. He also published an essay, 'Bialik's Trebren,' and in the 'Hatorem' he published a study on the laws of the ancient Babylonians and Romans in comparison with the ancient Hebrew laws in regards to loans, sureties and pledges. His articles have been published in almost every Yiddish paper in United States and Canada and a few of his poems in English appeared in "The Jewish Forum."
